THE BEST COMPLIMENT IS A REFERRAL

AT NETWORK HEALTH, WE'RE
FLATTERED THAT 93.2 PERCENT
OF DOCTORS AND SPECIALISTS WOULD RECOMMEND US.

That's probably also why Network Health earned an 84.2 percent satisfaction rating from its providers. Nearly 30 percent higher than our closest competitor. It's what makes Network Health a different kind of insurance company.

ARTIST SPOTLIGHT

Whether it is painting, drawing, murals or collage, Beth Servais brings to life her personal experiences and continually draws inspirations from her love for picture books, marbles and nature. Servais's art not only reflects her stories, but it also brings people together.

Servais is truly multi-interested and multi-talented. She started college at UW-Green Bay as a human biology major before switching to art with an emphasis in museum practices and minor in nonprofit management. Today Servais divides her time between a new position as the fund development and marketing coordinator at Harbor House, her Oshkosh-based creative space, Matchbook Studio, and various community projects.

With soft brushstrokes, vibrant primary color palettes and influences from nature, Servais's paintings reflect her personality – enthusiastic and always with a childlike ingenuity. This balances out the dark and abstract figures in her paintings as she navigates through her experiences, challenges and struggles. The contrast between lightness and darkness is a trademark of her work.

"My creative process helps me explore and confront parts of me that would otherwise be suppressed," Servais shares.

Servais has been taking on more collages during her time as the summer artist-in-residence at the Appleton Public Library. "Collage is great because it helps people feel relaxed while being creative," shares Servais. "They don't feel intimidated...it is taking their relationships with art to the next level and not taking it away from them."

Servais's latest project, a mural commissioned for the Appleton Public Library's 1,000 Books Before Kindergarten program, has been her biggest and favorite to date. "I am really excited; [the library] is inviting kids and their families to see it," she says. "We will have kids trying their hands at painting their own murals as well."

Recently Servais decided to pursue her art further in a new combined studio and living space in Appleton. This means leaving her current space at Matchbook Studio where she has been for the last two years. "Although it has been really fun [at Matchbook Studio], I feel tied to Appleton and hope to contribute more to the art scene here."

Freshii

Eat, Energize at Freshii

As a lifelong competitive dancer, Desiree Geffers knows the importance of fueling our bodies with the healthiest food possible. She also knows how hard that can be when you have an active lifestyle and on-the-go schedule. When she discovered Freshii, a healthy, fast-casual restaurant, it was as if her culinary prayers had been answered.

"I realized that Freshii offered convenience and nutrition combined," she says. "I brought the concept to my fiancé and his father who are both entrepreneurs and together Freshii became a reality for us all."

Geffers now co-owns Freshii, located at N162 Eisenhower Dr. in Buchanan, with her fiancé Jake Nerenhausen and his father, Scott Nerenhausen. The eco-conscious restaurant offers tossed-to-order salads, bowls, burritos, soups and wraps as well as fresh smoothies, juices and frozen kefir.

"One of my favorite aspects of Freshii is that we can cater to all dietary and nutritional needs," Geffers says. "We offer a wide array of options including vegan, vegetarian, gluten-free, low sodium, low carb and high protein."

Customization is king at Freshii. Chef designed entrees consist of Mexican, Asian and Indian flavors. Guests can choose from four different protein options including steak, chicken, tofu and falafel. From there, the sky's the limit. Toppings such as beet slaw, crispy wontons and edamame can be added or eliminated at the customer's request.

Geffers is proud of Freshii's commitment to green initiatives. Produce is cut in-house and all sauces and dressings are made on site as well, eliminating the need for extra preservatives and unnecessary packaging. Most of Freshii's packaging is made from eco-friendly vegetable starches like corn or potatoes so it biodegrades quickly, leaving behind only carbon dioxide, biomass and water. The store is built smaller to use less materials and consume less energy with a simple setup that requires no energy-hungry dishwashers, hoods, ranges or ovens.

"At Freshii we want to treat our bodies and environment right. All of our utensils, bowls, salad shaking bags and napkins are biodegradable," Geffers says. "By cutting out the use of dishwashers, we cut down immensely on our carbon footprint and water consumption."

Diners of all ages will find their fix at Freshii. A full children's menu and a family friendly environment means Freshii is as great for leisurely family meals as it is for a quick midday pit stop.

"We want our guests to leave in a better place both physically and mentally from when they first entered our doors. By providing nutritious options that are affordable and convenient we can fuel our guests and provide them with an experience that will exceed their expectations," Geffers says. "We want our guests to know that it is possible for nutritious food to taste good."

Playing into Fame

When music, experience and community come together, a festival is born and the Green Lake Music Festival is no exception. Musicians from all over the country come together to create 37 years of an intoxicating atmosphere for the Fox Cities.

This year the festival is opening with a free preview show sponsored by Lynn Grout-Paul in memory of her late husband, Gerry Grout, who was a founder of the festival.

Trio Lago Verde, the featured act of the preview concert, is comprised of three young musicians who met last summer at the Green Lake Chamber Camp. Thirteen-year-old Caleb Borick, from Charleston, South Carolina will be on piano, 14-year-old Emily Hauer from Appleton, will be on violin and 14-year-old Esther Chae from Miami, Florida will be on cello.

"The preview concert usually features young artists and this year it's extraordinary that they met at the Green Lake music festival," says Laura Deming, acting festival director.

The preview concert, held in Green Lake's Thrasher Opera House, is the season's kick-off concert. The show will be held on June 10 at 7 p.m. where there will be a 15-minute talk back with the artists. The concert itself begins at 7:30 p.m.

"The concerts are very interactive and casual, and very community oriented. Since the Green Lake Music Festival was founded in 1979, the common theme has been excellent quality with world class artists," says Deming.

For a full list of events, programs and the concert lineup, call 748-9398 or visit greenlakefestival.org.

Best Friends, Bike and Bite

The Annual Best Friends Gourmet Bike Tour has set the pace for cycling, celebrating 30 years of riding this July. What began as a small fundraiser at Plamann Park in Appleton has shifted gears into an annual outing in support of the Best Friends of Neenah-Menasha. For one Neenah man, that means 30 years of pedaling.

Glen Ahles, 85, has been riding since the tour's beginnings. "I think I only missed one year," says Ahles. "I had some broken ribs and I couldn't ride." Broken ribs are about the only thing that could have stopped him.

Over the years, Ahles has continued to train for weekend races such as the Best Friends Bike Tour, with his longest ride ever reaching 147 miles over a period of 12 hours. "But that was in my younger days," he says. "I only do the 55 [mile ride] now. I used to always do the longest rides but the last few years I have been cutting back just because I'm getting old."

This year's tour is taking place July 24 at St. Mary Central High School in Neenah, with day-of registration kicking off at 6 a.m. "Anyone is invited to ride," says Patti Houlihan, a program service coordinator at Best Friends. "It's not a race, it's a tour. The higher mileage routes can be more of a race environment." Some people, however, simply enjoy riding at their own pace to see if they can finish 100 miles, she adds.

Awaiting each participant at the end of the race is a gourmet meal including homemade goods, calzones, subs, pasta, and even some ice cream to help cleanse the palette. "Anyone looking to lose a few pounds isn't going to find that here," Houlihan jokes.

Participants are encouraged to take advantage of pre-registration before 11 p.m. July 17 to receive optimum pricing and an event T-shirt.

Ticket Through Time

The passing of days can be marked in any number of ways, but at The National Railroad Museum in Green Bay, it is marked through the evolution of railcars and the railroad experience.

The museum marks its 60th year in 2016 and to commemorate it, they are hosting a special anniversary event on July 30 where they will introduce and dedicate a new addition to their collection, and reveal an unexpected special announcement.

"Anytime we get a new piece here, it's exciting, and the Canadian National Railroad has donated a boxcar to us, so we are going to be doing a boxcar dedication," says Jennifer Neumeier, marketing director for the National Railroad Museum.

Canadian National Railroad has been in motion for nearly 100 years and still plays a large role in transportation today, making their donation a valuable addition to the museum.

"This car was built around July 1993 by Trenton Works in Nova Scotia, Canada. It is a 100-ton, single plug door boxcar, with roughly 5,277 cubic feet capacity," explains Neumeier. "The railcar weighs approximately 64,000 pounds empty and is able to haul almost 200,000 pounds of commodity."

Along with the reveal of both the boxcar and the operational announcement, the museum, which features a number of other train relics from the past, will have games, free train rides, cake, children's educational programs and reduced admission.

Guests are invited to explore and learn the history of trains through photographs, biographies, artifacts and rolling stock collections. In addition to special events, the non-profit museum which serves 75,000 visitors annually, provides tours and educational programs throughout the year.

The Anniversary event runs from 10:30 a.m. until 5 p.m. on July 30. To learn more, visit nationalrrmuseum.org.

Riverside Players Relive the Classics

Fireflies and stage lights, crickets and musical interludes. This summer, the outdoor theater company, Riverside Players, will be celebrating their 60th anniversary of serving the community through performance. A subset of the City of Neenah Parks and Recreation Department, Riverside Players delivers two summer shows to the public each year at Riverside Park.

"Some people play softball, some go walking or play a sport or craft or something," says Laurie Olson, superintendent of recreation. "That's kind of your typical recreation, but community theater is recreation. They just love to do it. Some people play softball three times a week, theater people are at rehearsal."

Drawing actors from the Fox Valley and Oshkosh, Riverside Players is truly a theater for the community by the community.

Neenah's Parks and Recreation department has recognized this relationship since Riverside Players was founded in 1957.

Through the years, Riverside Players has developed a reliable audience base from the Fox Cities area and beyond. In celebration of their upcoming anniversary, Riverside Players will be holding a greatest-hits show in place of their typical summer musical to honor their audience.

"People who have attended over the years have their favorites and I would assume that one of the songs or dances will be from one of their shows, be it 'Annie' or 'South Pacific,'" Olson states. "Some song is going to touch them. Their participation in the Fox Valley would be to come support the theater and the people in the shows."

The 60th anniversary "Musical Highlight Show" will be held July 28-31 and Aug. 3-7. Tickets for this show and their upcoming rendition of "And Then There Were None," showing June 22-26, can be purchased at the Neenah Parks and Recreation office, online and at the event. For more information, visit neenahgov.org.

Annual Garden Walk Grows

Local plants are blooming in excitement for Homeless Connections' 26th Annual Garden Walk. Beginning at 10 a.m. on July 16, gardeners and non-gardeners alike are invited to tour seven different gardens across the Fox Valley.

Each garden is hand-picked by a group of volunteers who work closely with Homeless

Connections, an organization dedicated to both the prevention of homelessness and "connecting individuals and families to resources that promote self-sufficiency," says Beth Servais, volunteer and special events coordinator.

"We have a Garden Walk committee who is very hands on," Servais says. "Some are even Master Gardeners." Not only does the committee help with any questions patrons may have on the day of the event, but they are also committed to recruiting some of the most beautiful home gardens in the Valley. "Each year it is exciting to see the gardens people have created," says Servais. "They are all unique and beautiful."

Visitors are invited to pave their own path from garden to garden as they use provided directions for a self-guided tour. Alongside the daffodils, peonies and sunflowers, garden goers should also look out for a plant sale at every stop. Once finished, walkers are encouraged to drive to Homeless Connections to visit an additional location, new to the walk this year.

"This year we are hosting a Garden Art Market," says Servais. This market will feature original garden artwork created by local artists. Next to the market, Homeless Connections will be hosting a cookout where lunch will be served.

All proceeds will benefit Homeless Connections. For more information, visit homelessconnections.net.

The Great OUTDOORS

By Amelia Compton Wolff

Outside spaces bring the arts to life, naturally

Nature inspires, invigorates and cultivates creativity. It is a fitting backdrop for concerts, performances and interactive education. Two local organizations are giving their outdoor spaces some serious upgrades in an effort to create artful experiences for Northeast Wisconsin residents of all ages.

Interactive Children's Learning Garden

This spring the Kaukauna Public Library kicked off fundraising efforts for an Interactive Children's Learning Garden. The garden will be the latest addition to the new library located on the second floor of the historic Eagle Mill at Grand KaKalin which opened on February 29.

"The whole idea behind the garden is to create a natural, educational, collaborative space," says Ashley Thiem-Menning, programming librarian at Kaukauna Public Library.

"We want to take advantage of what the space offers to make our library more interactive and interesting to the community."

The garden will be divided into six "classrooms" devoted to the study of biology, music, archeology, literature, art and history as well as an amphitheater for outdoor library events, concerts and school groups. While the garden's main goal is to engage youth, Thiem-Menning says there will be plenty of room for adults to read a book or have a meeting.

Thiem-Menning says the space, which drew inspiration from Bookworm Gardens in Sheboygan, will complement the library's new 26,600-square-foot facility and is unlike anything currently in the Fox Cities.

"The community is pretty inspired by what we've done here with the construction that's already taken place," says Library Director Tony Wiczorek. "We want to finish the first part, the interior of the library, but our goal has always been to incorporate that garden. It's the first thing people see when they drive into the development."

Phase one of the four phase project will include grading the area and the construction of a butterfly garden which should begin this summer. Wiczorek says the current fundraising goal is set at $150,000, but it could change as plans continue to develop. The project timeline will depend on how quickly fundraising goals are met which Wiczorek anticipates will be sooner rather than later.

"The community has bought into this project very energetically and their donations will make this dream possible," Wiczorek says. "It's very much their project, their library."

The Grand Garden

Since opening for business in 1996, the Green Bay Botanical Garden has grown into a community asset serving 130,000 visitors a year. The Garden has held performing arts events in the upper gardens for the last 20 years, with the last five years averaging 750 attendees per event.

"We really had to grow into this space," says Executive Director Susan Garot. "We were starting to hear from visitors that if they don't get to events early enough, they couldn't see the performers. We have reached our capacity. It's time to expand to accommodate all who wish to attend."

Currently 22 of the Garden's 47 acres are developed as display gardens. The next phase of the growth plan is to complete the "backyard" by developing a two and a half acre area into what's being called the Grand Garden.

The Grand Garden will feature an amphitheater that would host local, regional and national touring acts, with seating for 1,500 people in a casual, outdoor setting.

Restrooms, concessions, a catering kitchen and classrooms would be available for year-round use as well as side structures for smaller private or sponsor events. Expanded opportunities to showcase the Garden's nationally recognized horticultural collections, including more than 100 varieties of magnolias, will be made possible in the Grand Garden.

"It's a $5 million project and it will take an investment from people in the community who wish to see an improved arts and culture scene in Northeast Wisconsin," says Garot who notes that no tax dollars have supported the Garden since its opening.

The goal is to complete the construction phase of the project by spring of 2017 with plantings installed next year.

Grand opening events including Nature Connects®, a traveling exhibit of 20 larger-than-life sculptures built with LEGO® bricks, are already scheduled for 2018.

"We are really hoping to 'wow' the community," Garot says. "The Gardens' economic impact is $6 million a year. With this program, we could double that. It will be the background for creating memories in peoples' lives."

A photograph of Abe Weber, a man with short dark hair and a light beard, shirtless and leaning over a dark wooden table. A white t-shirt is draped over his left shoulder. He is looking directly at the camera with a neutral expression. On the table in front of him are a pair of orange-rimmed sunglasses and an open magazine. The background is a rustic interior with dark wood paneling, a large ornate brass chandelier with multiple lit candles, and a wooden cabinet with drawers featuring floral carvings. The lighting is warm and focused on the subject.

FOX CITIES Magazine's 10th Annual Photo Contest call for entries

FOX CITIES Magazine reserves the right to reproduce winning photographs in its publications.

FOX CITIES Magazine is proud to present our tenth annual Photo Contest. Our aim is to recognize the best in amateur photography that celebrates the place we call home. Winners will be published in our August 2016 issue.

Entries may be submitted in each of the following categories:

People: *Life in the Fox Cities and Northeast Wisconsin**

Places: Images of the regional landscape, from skylines to sunsets

Things: Distinctive features of the region seen in a unique way

Approximately 15 finalists per category will be selected from entries received. A judging panel will then choose first- through third-place winners in each category, as well as a grand prize winner.

Submission Process

- Entry forms can be downloaded at foxcitiesmagazine.com
- Submissions may be hand-delivered, snail-mailed or emailed to edit@foxcitiesmagazine.com.
- Emailed submissions must include the subject line: "Photo Contest" with the appropriate category. Be sure to include your name, address, phone number and image title.

Rules

- One submission per category per person.
- Photos must have been taken regionally* by amateur photographer residents of Northeast Wisconsin.
- Winning entrants will be required to identify and submit releases from individuals shown in photographs of fewer than five people.
- Entries must not be entered in other contests, previously won an award or been published.
- Obviously altered or colored photos, montages or composite images will not be accepted.
- Winning photographers must submit original, high-resolution digital images for publication.

* Roughly defined as the Fox Cities and Green Bay area bounded by Manitowoc, Door County, Waupaca and Oshkosh.

Food Trucks of the Fox Valley

By Sarah C. Spencer

Tucked alongside the parked vehicles lining College Avenue is an inconspicuous white trailer hitched to the back of a truck. The black boldface lettering printed on the trailer's side reads simply, "French Crepes."

Don't keep walking. Stop here. And if you've moseyed on past, it's time to backpedal.

Inside the trailer, chef Amri Prince is whipping up authentic French crepes.

Pull up to the window of the trailer's exterior and hungry spectators can observe Prince's cooking technique, as he smooths out his original recipe batter on hot plates heated to 450 degrees. If you ask, Prince will tell you the story of how he learned to make crepes and built this trailer with his father-in-law.

"I'm from Tunisia," he will tell you. "There is a heavy French culinary influence there, and when I moved to Kaukauna, I wanted crepes but no one was making them. I decided I would be the one."

Prince and his food trailer, Le Prince French Crepes, are part of a gourmet food truck revolution that has rolled into the Fox Valley, a community known for its proud supper club traditions. As the area's dining scene evolves, residents can now step outside their comfort zone and choose from an array of mobile eateries that are moving us forward and into the future as a community.

Community Experience

Gourmet food trucks, trailers and carts, though well known cultural icons in large cities like San Francisco and Chicago, are a new, welcome addition to the Fox Valley.

According to Karen Harkness, Appleton's director of community development, the food truck trend is a modern and novel approach to dining that is adding a significant cultural experience to the city.

"This is such a fun and unique experience," Harkness says. "You've got all kinds of community members outside, eating gourmet meals together on the street. It adds a level of social interaction—with the vendor, neighbors, coworkers—that isn't always a part of the experience of a traditional restaurant."

The movement is crossing boundaries within the city's departments as well, infusing them with the spirit of collaboration.

"When something like the Fox Valley Food Truck Rally comes forward, it creates an environment of economic development that gets

Follow that Truck!

The beauty of food trucks is their mobility – it can also make them tough to track. Make sure to follow your favorite trucks on Facebook, Twitter and Instagram to see where they roam on any given day. Find a list of trucks under the notes section on the Fox Valley Food Truck Rally's Facebook page to start.

multiple departments involved,” Harkness explains. “The health department, public works and parks and recreation all come together to help the vendors make these events possible.”

Food Truck Rally

Last year marked the inauguration of the Fox Valley Food Truck Rally, a community event featuring 10-plus trucks from around the region at Appleton's Pierce Park.

The trucks, ranging from BBQ and wood-fired pizza to kettle corn, authentic Mexican tacos and shaved ice, are splashed with colorful mosaics. Some dangle whimsical charms from their hoods that blow noisily in the wind, beckoning you to step to the service window.

“The Food Truck Rally has already become a sign of spring and summer for our community,” Harkness says.

Having been a huge success in 2015, the organizers have added additional dates and locations to this year's lineup. Four Thursday night events are scheduled to take place at Pierce Park in Appleton and four Tuesday night events will take place at Jefferson Park in Menasha.

Visit the rally's Facebook page for dates and to view a roster of trucks that will be in attendance at each event.

In the Valley

Kyle Fritz of Looy's Dogs, a mobile hot dog business, is perhaps best known as the Fox Valley's food truck pioneer. He was one of the first on the scene back in 2009.

“I purchased a trailer and two carts before the city even had regulations or licensing in place allowing them in downtown Appleton,” Fritz says. “In fact, the carts were the first two to be licensed in the state of Wisconsin.”

Q. What is the difference between broiling, grilling and barbecuing? — “Tex,” Little Chute

A. This is a very frequent question among many of those who use a grill. Broiling by definition is “a dry-heat cooking method in which foods are cooked by heat radiating from a source located above the cooking surface.” The definition of grilling is “a dry-heat cooking method in which foods are cooked by heat radiating from a source located below the cooking surface.” Most broiling and grilling is done directly utilizing moderate to high heat, and they are basically the same thing with the only difference being the location of the heat source. One advantage to grilling over broiling is the juices from the meat drip onto the heat source and return to flavor the meat as steam and smoke. Barbecuing is a cooking method that is almost always done with very moist, indirect heat at low to medium temperatures and is commonly referred to as “low and slow.” This low temperature long-term cooking method allows the infusion of different varieties of smoke to permeate the meat in concert with various rubs, mops and sauces as part of the flavoring process. The real key to barbecue is the high moisture environment which helps the meat become more tender and palatable as it breaks down the connective tissue collagen into gelatin which is soft and pleasing to the palate.

Chef Jeff Igel is Program Director of Culinary Outreach at Fox Valley Technical College, Appleton. “Chef Jeff” has spent his entire career in the restaurant and hospitality industry, serving in many capacities.

Kyle worked with the city to get the necessary permits to allow his carts to set up shop during bar close on Friday and Saturday nights. His business took off, fueled by the relationships he developed with regular customers.

“We were able to greatly expand, because we became part of people’s routine, something they looked forward to. Today, we have five hot dog carts, a trailer and a food truck. We’re also selling drinks, kettle corn and frosted almonds,” says Fritz, who also owns Bagelicious in downtown Appleton.

“The food trucks, they give people a taste of the big city,” he says. “They see the umbrella of the hot dog cart, and it’s like stepping out of Appleton for a moment and onto the streets of New York City.”

Beyond the Valley

Just south of the Fox Valley, you can find some of the area’s best BBQ. Take a short jaunt over to Oshkosh and nestled into a downtown neighborhood, you’ll discover Rodney’s Café, a brick and mortar restaurant.

“It’s my mother’s recipe,” owner Rodney Frazier says proudly. “I grew up in the South with seven brothers and sisters and mom taught us all how to cook.”

Rodney’s Café started out as a sandwich shop, but expanded to using a food trailer to spread word of his BBQ at the Oshkosh Farmers Market. He also uses the trailer for catering services.

“The Farmers Market, company catering, family events, you name it,” Frazier says. “The trailer makes it so I can bring the BBQ to people.”

At Frazier’s brick and mortar location or at the service widow of his food truck, you’ll find he’s working to carry out a mission not only to offer the area something delicious, but also to give people an opportunity to work.

“I employ people who haven’t had the ability to develop the critical job skills they need to move up,” he says. “Here, anyone can apply and learn how a food operation is run, how to cook, and serve, so that they can secure long-term employment and succeed in life. That’s my mission.”
